

Dr. Tiffany Maple, Ph.D.

Dr. Tiffany Maple is an accomplished educational leader, organizational strategist, and community advocate with more than 25 years of experience transforming educational systems and improving outcomes for children and families. She holds a Ph.D. in Psychology and has built a distinguished career serving as a classroom teacher, founding school leader, turnaround school leader, and Head of Schools. Dr. Maple began her career after earning her Teacher Certification from the University of Houston and later completed the Founding School Leader program through a collaboration between the KIPP Foundation and New York University. She has also earned certifications in Organizational Leadership and the Leadership Principles Program from Harvard Business School, strengthening her expertise in leadership, organizational development, and systems improvement. Throughout her career, she has been recognized for developing high-performing schools, leading instructional excellence, cultivating strong organizational cultures, and empowering educators to maximize student achievement.

Dr. Maple is passionate about serving the community through the Impact Community Health & Wellness Coalition because she believes that education and health are deeply interconnected. She understands that individuals and families thrive when they have access to quality education, preventive healthcare, mental health awareness, and supportive community resources. Her background in psychology has further strengthened her commitment to promoting the overall well-being of children, families, and underserved communities. Volunteering her time and expertise allows her to extend her life's mission beyond the classroom by helping build healthier, stronger, and more informed communities where every individual has the opportunity to succeed.

Through community outreach events, Dr. Maple plans to educate, empower, and inspire individuals by providing practical knowledge, resources, and encouragement that promote lifelong health and wellness. She hopes to support families by increasing awareness of physical and mental health, encouraging healthy lifestyle choices, and connecting community members with valuable services and resources. Drawing upon her extensive experience in leadership, education, and psychology, Dr. Maple is committed to creating meaningful opportunities for learning, fostering trust within the community, and equipping individuals with the tools they need to make informed decisions that improve their overall quality of life. She believes lasting change occurs when education, wellness, and community partnerships work together, and she is honored to contribute her experience in support of the Coalition's mission.
